Preparing for 'the big one'

Students fling chairs and desks out of the way (above) as they attempt to help classmates "injured" during the mock earthquake exercise at Alta Loma Elementary School. On the cover: Some wounds appeared gruesomely real, as was the case with the head injury on Maria Campos, who was bandaged by two local paramedics.

DISASTER

in the form of an earthquake

Students with blood-dripping gashes and bone-protruding wounds lay scattered across the floor of a messy Alta Loma Elementary School classroom recently. Their lesson for the day would not be found in any textbook.

With desks toppled over, books spread across the floor and no lighting, the classroom appeared to have been struck by an earthquake — and that was the idea.

Along with school, fire department, area hospital, ambulance and sheriff's department officials; the students took part in an earthquake disaster simulation drill organized by the school's PTA.

The injuries, though they may have appeared real, were actually produced by make-up.

Preparing for adversity is something Alta Loma School District has been devoted to for two years, the time it took to prepare the district-wide earthquake program unveiled last October.

October was designated "Earthquake Preparedness Month" in the district and a guidebook outlining safety tips for students was developed. Students learned about the causes of temblors in classroom studies.

But periodic school bus and playground safety drills prove the district is interested in preparing for "the big one" more than once a year.

Parents have donated first aid items to each classroom on campus. Each room now has a disaster kit, sacks and one can of food per child. The most recent drill at the elementary school was the first time area emergency teams were directly involved in the drill.

Hal Wardell, director of general services at San Antonio Community Hospital, took pictures at the exercise to show others at the hospital what to be prepared for.

"Our input is non-existent," he said. "I'm just here to observe. Once they come through the ER (emergency room) doors, then it's our responsibility."

After a "duck and cover" drill in their classroom, students were led to the playground lawn while emergency vehicles rushed onto the campus. Teachers were ready with two hours worth of activities to keep the children orderly.

Only one classroom was full of "injured" students. Rescuers operated as if the school's gas and electrical lines had been cut off.

Under the flagpole in front of the school, a parent information center was established.

"We've told parents we'll care for their children until they come pick them up," Principal Joseph Laponis said.

Some parents were unaware a drill was underway and had come to pick up their children. They ended up serving as guinea pigs for the simulation and followed rules as if an actual emergency was taking place.

"Basically, our job is to not let anyone in or out of the school without knowing who it is and who is already in there," said Jean Marcum, a school secretary who manned the center. "There would be too much panic if we let too many parents in at one time."

Donna Harden, a school aide also working the center, said after a parent fills out an information card, a student "runner" accompanies the parent into the school yard, finds the child being sought and then leads both off the campus.

"We won't let them out of the gate unless they have the card," Harden said.

"Our main job is to avoid panic," she said. "If we let 100 parents in, it could cause serious problems."

"We're here to keep parents from breaking down the school," said Craig Knight, the student runner.

Three ambulances parked on the paved playground. Just under the vehicle headlights was triage, the place where patients are sorted out and rushed to the hospital depending on the severity of their injuries.

Parents, Red Cross volunteers and school aides tagged names and injury information onto the chests of students lying on the ground. Helen Rempel knelt down and comforted Maria Campos, a sixth grader with head injuries.

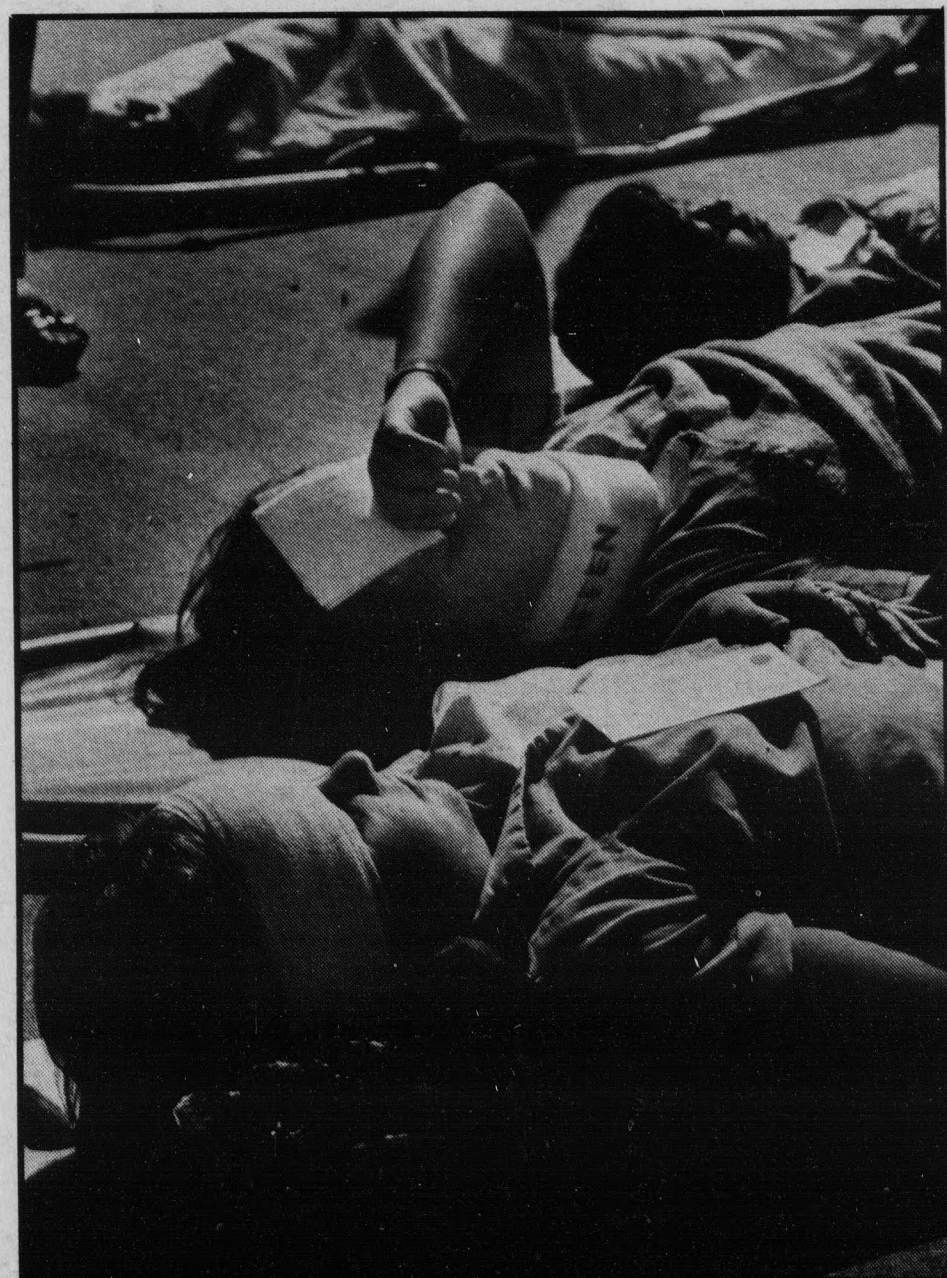

As an added twist, paramedics and volunteers were put to the test with Campos. She was tagged as a Spanish-speaker, which meant finding out about her injuries would be a job for someone who was bilingual.

Paramedics helped 15 injured students out of the demolished classroom. One student was fatally injured.

Near the end of the drill, Laponis walked over to Darrin Ford, the student killed in the quake, and said, "you can sit up and get yourself comfortable. You're not dead anymore."

When asked what killed him, Ford, with the side of his face and neck looking as if it had been put through a meat grinder, replied "I got thrashed."

But today, it was only a drill.

Outside the school, the public is warned of the drill in progress (top), while paramedics on the school grounds (above) get a student victim ready for an ambulance ride. Four of the 15 student victims (left) waited in the triage area while health officials determined who would be sent to the hospital first.

English taught through program

By Terri Tirella

Students entering Foothill Knolls Elementary School in Upland learn that speaking English isn't required. Not at first, anyway.

For the past decade, the Upland School District has been offering a bilingual program to help those students learn basic skills at the same time they are learning the English language.

"At one time we were a model for other school districts to visit because we have a good, strong program," said Monica Stephens, a resource teacher who works with the program.

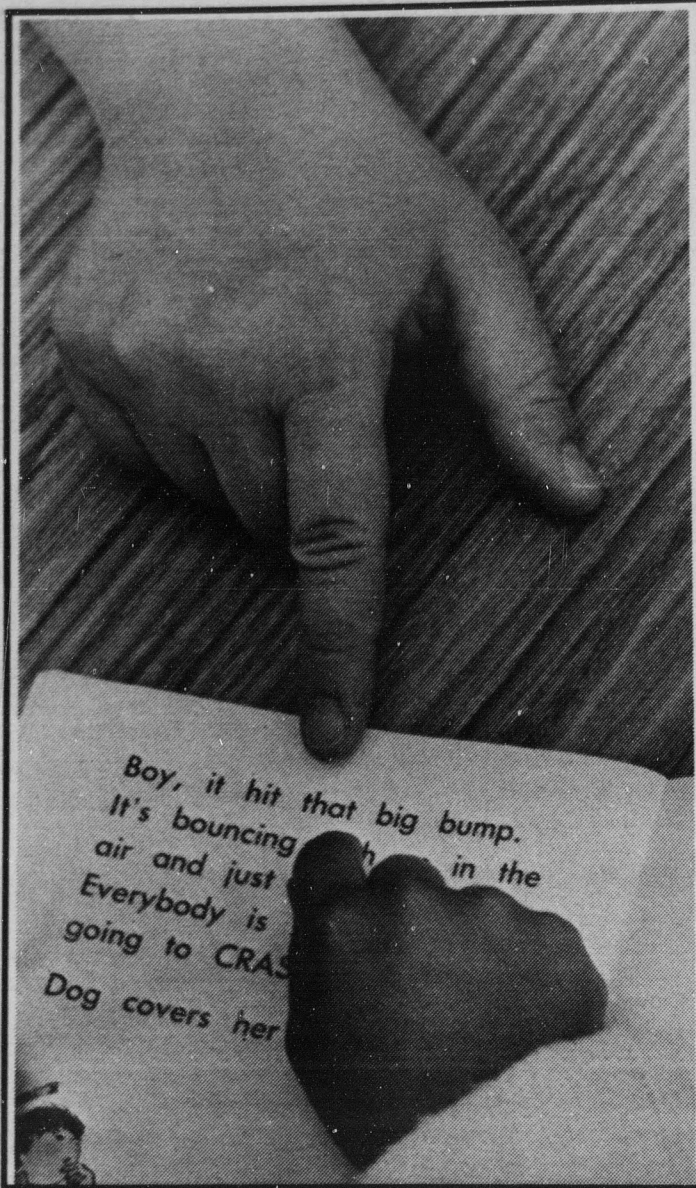

The program was originally funded under the federal Title 7 program and was part of a consortium with other districts in the area. The district now finances the program without special bilingual program funding.

Guidelines are set by state and federal law, according to Estella Marquez, another resource teacher. "The law specifies what ratio (non-English-speaking) students are to good English-speaking models. They don't want them (non-English speakers) segregated into one classroom."

If 10 students in a grade level do not speak English as their native language, the school must offer a bilingual program. When the number of non-English-speaking students is less than 10, the district has the option of offering individual lesson plans for the students.

Non-English-speaking students at Foothill Knolls begin their education with extensive testing in their native language, which linguists term their "primary language."

The tests are used to place the students in classroom groupings based on their skill levels. English-speaking and non-English-speaking students are taught in separate groups within the classroom.

After a student gains basic skills in his primary language, the next step is learning reading, math and other curriculum in that language. He then can make the transition to English without having gaps in learning or falling behind at his grade level.

Skills learned in a student's primary language can be translated to English with new vocabulary and pronunciation skills.

Stephens said students who have left the bilingual program and made the transition to instruction in English are competitive with English-speaking students in that grade level.

Foothill Knolls has bilingual teachers at each grade level on staff but children are taught in Spanish until they are ready to make the transition to English instruction.

"By the time students get through primary grades, they (usually) can exit the program. We try to get them out of the program in second grade or as early as kindergarten," Stephens said.

"Once the student moves into English, Spanish is only used for a support system," said Estella Marquez, another Foothill Knolls resource teacher. The gradual transition is geared to help students make the switch to English with a minimum of problems.

Most non-English-speaking parents are supportive and attend more school programs now than when the bilingual program started, said Linda Sheehy, a kindergarten teacher who was on the original bilingual team in 1974. "We have a good response at conference time," she added.

Participation in the bilingual program is not required, Sheehy said, and some parents have asked that their children be put immediately in an English-only class.

Acquisition of language determines student's success

A student's acquisition of a language — English, Spanish or another — determines success in school, noted Linda Sheehy, a Foothill Knolls kindergarten teacher who has worked with the Upland School District bilingual program for 10 years.

A student who has weak language skills will struggle in school, whether he speaks English or not, she added.

A student very fluent and proficient with syntax and oral skills in his own language can make the transition to English quickly, sometimes as early as kindergarten, Sheehy said.

For those students, learning a second language is not a difficult task because they have already mastered their first.

Cognitive thinking skills also are needed to make the transition from one language to another, Sheehy said. "Sorting out silverware (putting forks with forks, spoons with spoons) is an example of cognitive skills," she explained.

Understanding spatial relationships — knowing what is meant by putting something on the table, in the drawer or under something — is crucial for children as they attempt to learn a language.

Soroptimists honor community volunteer

Soroptimist International of Ontario's "Women Helping Women" award was presented to Mrs. Thomas T. Parker (Kitty) for her contributions to the community on behalf of women. Mrs. Parker's name was submitted by the Assistance League of Upland.

Her political and community service activities have included work with the PTA, in which she served as Fifth District president (San Bernardino County). She and her late husband hosted many foreign exchange students attending local colleges.

Mrs. Parker is a past president of the Ontario Woman's Club and was a member of the Rotary Ann group of the Ontario Rotary Club for many years, especially during the time her husband was the local chapter president.

Mrs. Parker currently is a board member of the Southern Division of the California Federation of Republican Women. She served as president of the Chaffey Community Republican Women, Federated, and remains a board member.

She was chairman of the Cucamonga Girls' Club during the years when the clubhouse was located at the corner of 24th Street and Turner Avenue.

In presenting the Soroptimists' award, Upland Assistance League president Mrs. Rufus Turner said Mrs. Parker's background illustrated a total life commitment to the idea of volunteerism. The pattern of her life, Mrs. Turner added, reflects her years of service through various organizations that touch women as participants and recipients.

Health Fair Expo to include testing

Free health tests, demonstrations and displays will be part of the Southern California Health Fair Expo sponsored by the Upland Rotary.

The event is Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at First Presbyterian Church in Upland, and is part of Health Fair Expo, an annual program offering free examinations at more than 100 sites throughout Southern California.

Free services and screening will be offered for height, weight, hearing, blood pressure, anemia, lung capacity and preventive health counseling.

For a $10 fee, participants can take a blood test which checks for cholesterol, diabetes, liver and kidney function and 20 other blood checks. There will also be information on stress management.

Organizers consider health screening a vitally important concept because they said few of the nation's resources are used to provide preventive health care. The Health Fair Expo not only provides comprehensive screening procedures, but also counsels participants and follows up with a telephone call to determine whether the participant is making use of the informational referrals and educational information received.

The testing site is First Presbyterian Church at 869 N. Euclid in Upland.

Getting ready for Health Fair Expo, a series of free health screenings offered to the public on Saturday, April 7 from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church of Upland, 869 N. Euclid Ave., Upland, are: (left to right) Barbara Wood, volunteer; Harold Bailin, participant; and Mitch Holland, site coordinator. In addition to medical screenings, Health Fair Expo will offer educational information on health care and, for a nominal fee, blood tests will be given.

Valencia students help clean up famous lady

The Statue of Liberty is getting support from more than the pedestal at her feet. Students at Valencia Elementary School in Upland joined in the nationwide fund-raising effort to refurbish the famous lady.

A welcoming sight for those entering New York Harbor, the statue's 100th birthday will be celebrated in 1986. A renovation project has been initiated to restore the landmark to its original state in celebration of the centennial year.

Thomas Fine, principal at Valencia, said kindergarten teacher Nancy Pifley coordinated Statue of Liberty Week which kicked off with an all-school assembly March 9.

"Each classroom had a (fund-raising) project. Third and fifth graders held an academic olympics where they had friends, parents and relatives sponsor them, that they can do certain mathematic (computations) in a certain time," Fine said.

"Others (classes) sold things and did different things. At the end of the week we had an assembly and a total of $1,175.58 that we mailed to the Ellis Island Foundation," he continued.

Fashions, food to be featured by department

The Chaffey College Home Economics Department Seventh Annual Fashion, Fabric and Food Festival will be held Saturday, May 5.

Pre-registration is required and enrollment is limited.

For information and to pre-register, call Creative Arts, Chaffey College, 987-1737, extension 523.

"The children really got involved in the spirit of the effort and took a lot of personal pride (in the fund-raising project). That kind of enthusiasm and commitment from children is kind of neat," Fine said.

Fine said that the project to save the Statue of Liberty is a national grassroots effort for school children. He said most of the 545 Valencia students contributed to the project.

Travel tips for south of border

By John H. Nicholson

Let's only glance back a few weeks this time, while a trip into Baja California is still fresh in mind. We learned a few things, some of which may be of use to readers.

In previous columns, I have mentioned my wife,

Ethel. After 39 years together, she was suddenly taken by a fatal heart attack in 1976. An old friend, Micki Keller, lost her husband, "Bud," that same year. We both learned that living alone can be "for the birds," so in 1977, Micki and I were married and started enjoying living again.

On March 4, this year, with full reservations for lodging and air flights, we left for two weeks in Baja. Micki and I drove to the Mexico Gateway Travelodge in San Ysidro, a stone's throw from the Mexican border, where we stayed overnight. Arrangements were made to leave our car in their parking lot. Early on Monday morning, we were picked up by a bus, from the Tijuana Transportation Service, and delivered to the Tijuana airport.

After a variety of inspections, we boarded an Aeromexico plane and were off for La Paz, capitol of the state of Baja California Del Sur (of the south). Studying a timetable, I was puzzled in finding that a flight leaving Tijuana at 10 a.m. arrived in La Paz at 11 a.m. One leaving La Paz at 2 p.m. arrived in Tijuana at 5 p.m. One hour southbound and three hours northbound, and both non-stop. Rather odd. Checking a good map, I found the answer. The dividing line between the Mountain and Pacific time zones follows the Colorado River, past Yuma, and south down the middle of the Gulf of California, or Sea of Cortez, until it reaches the line between the Mexican states of Baja California Del Norte (of the north) and B.C. Del Sur. There it goes west across the peninsula and into the Pacific. Thus, the time difference.

Fortunately, we had window seats on the left side of the plane. We crossed over the peninsula, and flew just inland from the Gulf coast. With an excellent auto club map of the area, it was quite interesting observing bays, inlands, and towns we had heard of for years.

Arriving at La Paz airport, we took a small bus-taxi, with several other folks, into town. We were dropped off, with our baggage, at the Hotel Los Arcos. Micki had heard others say they were going to the El Presidente Hotel. I announced our arrival at the desk, and was asked for our reservation papers. They were in the blue bag, with cash, travelers checks, air tickets, reservations ahead, etc. But there was no blue bag.

I rushed to the street, but the small bus had gone. Another driver advised that ours had been Eloy De La Pena. A clerk phoned El Presidente and explained the problem. I spent an anxious 30 minutes at the curb, and then good old Eloy arrived with the blue bag. He got an extra tip.

Something learned there; always count the luggage, everytime it is moved.

The Los Arcos is a fine hotel, at $28 per day, and has an adjacent group of fine "cabanos" at $25 per day for two. It is located on the beach of La Paz's large and beautiful sheltered bay. It is only a

Kids of all ages enjoy toy show

It was a paradise for kids from 1 to 100. The Agricultural Pavilion at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds in Pomona was magically transformed into a gigantic toy store for the 1984 Western States Toy and Hobby Show.

With an air of pure delight, Kelly Tackett, 4, rocked on a tall wooden rocking horse while her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Tackett, purchased merchandise for their toy store in Incline Village, Nev.

Kelly didn't realize it, but she was actually working.

"We stand back and watch them gravitate," Tackett said of his three children, Kelly, Matthew, 6, and Jody, 8.

The strategy has proved successful. Toys that his children choose sell well, Tackett said. Often, the children also demonstrate toys for customers, he added.

The Tacketts were among 2,500 buyers who jammed into the refurbished pavilion for the five-day show to order stock for their shelves.

The buyers' decisions, to a large degree, will determine what children of all ages find under their trees this Christmas, said Lou Silberman, president of the Western Toy and Hobby Representatives Association.

What will be big on Santa's list this year? Representatives of Coleco Industries Inc. are confident nothing will replace their Cabbage Patch Kids.

"It's incredible that our production is limited to six million this year and they're a sellout," said Danielle Minto, sales representative.

The dolls' popularity stems from the fact that each is unique, the adoption process is involved "and each has a face only a mother could love," said Minto. Brand new this year are "preemies," a crop of infants "who arrived early because of an early frost in the Wykoosa Valley cabbage patch," she explained.

Another new item is the Cabbage Patch pet, a "huggable koosa." And, there are new clothes, a musical swing and a three-way table made especially for the "kids."

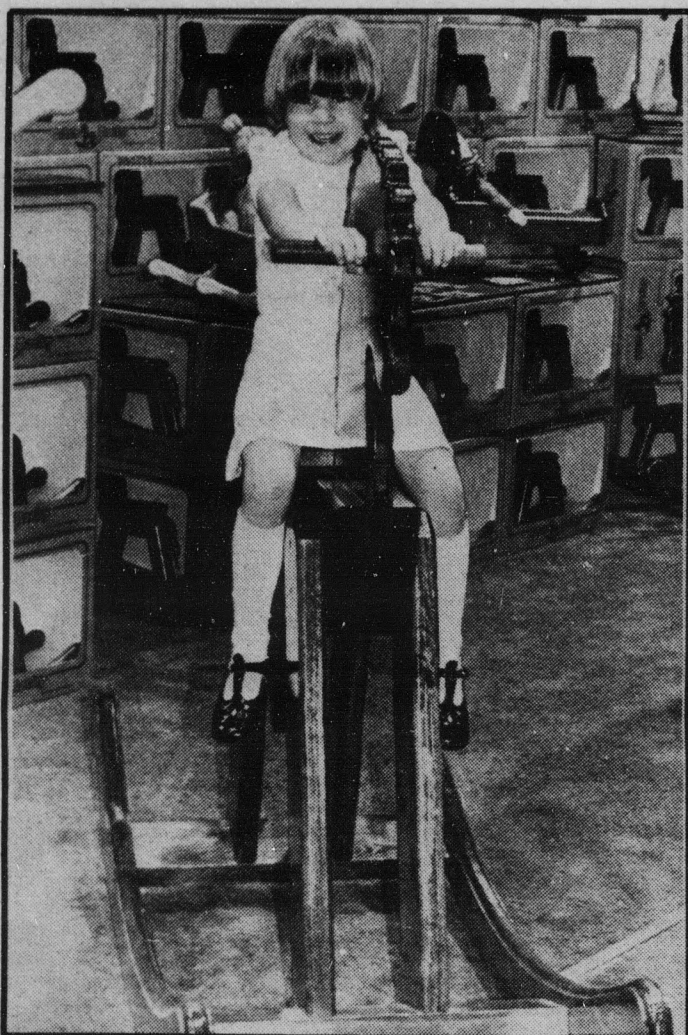

Every child, once they have one kid, will want a baby brother and a "koosa" to love, said Minto.

Exhibitors from other companies agreed that the Cabbage Patch is still a "hot item." Among the potpourri of toys were Cabbage Patch activity centers, paper dolls and paints.

"Everyone expects it (Cabbage Patch) to be big."

LIBRARY NEWS

Library offers advice for touring

By Maureen Bartolotta
Upland Reference Librarian

How many of us have found ourselves faced with a free weekend and nothing to do? While Southern California seems like a paradise to those who don't live here, those of us who do tend to take it for granted and either overlook opportunities or run out of ideas.

We have a good selection of books at the library that should keep even the most active family person busy for some time to come. With the beautiful weather we've been having, this is a perfect time to get "off the couch" and explore!

• "Where Can We Go This Weekend?" is a listing of over 250 one-, two- and three-day travel adventures in Southern California. It is arranged by broad categories so you can pick and choose what interests you. It also has a monthly events sections which lists events that are usually held on an annual basis.

• "Day Tours In and Around Los Angeles"

is a little different. It describes driving tours of the Southern California area. It lays out 14 different journeys that range from the top of the Ridge Route in the Tehachapi Mountains to Laguna Beach. Each tour includes directions, approximate mileage and explanations of what you're seeing.

• "L.A. On Foot" is a guide for those who are looking for a little more exercise. It includes walks and bike rides in L.A. and Orange counties, by dividing the area into 12 different tours. This book really makes the city come alive with its stories and scandals of the real L.A.

• "L.A. Inside Out" is a comprehensive sourcebook to Los Angeles, with over 1,300 listings. It is organized into three sections: a general introduction to the city; a geographic breakdown of restaurants, hotels, attractions and activities; and a complete index of all the listings which appear in the book.

• "L.A./Access" is a new book which is difficult to characterize. While it is an excellent handbook, it is also full of bits of trivia and historical facts. It is very well organized and has outstanding graphics. It is probably the best all-around guide, and at $9.95, it would make an excellent purchase for those who might be interested.

• "500 Things To Do In Los Angeles For Free" seems too good to be true. As the author states in her introduction, one of the flaws in living around here is that there's too many things to choose from. This book is a valuable companion to those who wish to experience the best of the area without a tug on the purse strings.

• "California Coastal Access Guide" provides an exhaustive look at the 1,100 mile California coast. A project of the California Coastal Commission, this work identifies areas on the coast that are open to the public and explains the public's rights and responsibilities regarding the use of coastal resources. This edition includes features, maps and photographs to familiarize the public with the magnificent resources the Advice for owning a pet in the city

It's easier than you think to own a pet in the city.

Too often, people deny themselves the joy and companionship that a cat or dog could bring into their lives because they think pets can't fit into an urban lifestyle.

But even those who live in a tiny studio apartment or travel frequently can enjoy the comfort of canine companionship or the pleasure of a feline friend.

The Pets Are Wonderful Council's new brochure, "A Tenant's Guide: Pets Are Wonderful Urban Dwellers," is filled with advice and tips.

The 12-page booklet offers advice on selecting the best pet, tips for keeping your pet entertained (and quiet), alternatives for caring for a pet while owners are traveling, hints for being a good pet-owning neighbor, advice for changing no-pet rules in the owner's place of residence and much more.

The booklet also covers important topics like how to convince a potential landlord to accept a pet-owner as a tenant.

"A Tenant's Guide: Pets Are Wonderful Urban Dwellers" is available free by sending a stamped, self-addressed, number 10 envelope to: PAW Tenants Booklet, c/o Pets Are Wonderful Council, Dept. LSP, 500 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill., 60611.

• No tour of the L.A. area would be complete this summer without mention of the 1984 Olympics. We just received the "Official Map Book To The Los Angeles 1984 Olympics." It shows area and detail maps to all Olympic events. Individual event sites are shown in great detail.

These are just a few of the of the general guide books we have. We also have guides aimed at those with special interests: "Historic Houses of California," "Guidebook To The San Gabriel Mountains of California," "Mines Of The San Gabriels" and "California Museum Directory." Restaurant guides and architectural guides are other topics altogether. We have some good ones.

We hope reading this has aroused your interest and motivated you to explore this exciting area. We also hope that any trips you take, be they long or short, will be preceded by a trip to the Upland Public Library. □ few blocks from the center of this city of 150,000 people.

After settling in, and a swim in the nice pool, we decided to stroll downtown. Stepping out, we were met by the start of a huge parade. We found that we were here for the last two days of their annual Carnival of Joy, a week-long affair that ends the day before Lent starts. There were many fantastic floats, pulled by huge rubber tired farm tractors. Among the floats were hundreds of costumed dancers and marchers. It was like Mardi Gras. It seemed like half the folks in town had gotten into the act. What a sight.

Farther on, we came to booths selling most everything, Mariachi Bands, and all sorts of revelry. It was a joy to be there to take it in. On Tuesday and Wednesday, we toured the area and loafed a lot.

Early Thursday morning, I was awakened by a dull pain in the middle of my chest. It eased after a while, but as I have a pacemaker, I decided to check my pulse. All I could get was in the low 40s per minute. With the pacemaker, it should have been 75. So, I contacted a Mexican doctor whom I had met by the pool earlier. He came and checked me and was concerned. We were to fly on south to a remote hotel that afternoon.

The doctor took me to a Mexican lady Cardiologist, who ran an electrocardiogram on me. They conferred in rapid fire Spanish. They asked several questions about the pacemaker, such as "Is it a demand pacemaker?" I didn't have the answers.

Then they announced that I should return home at once, to my own doctors, as the pacemaker seemed very irregular. "Don't climb stairs, and don't lift anything."

So, after much cancellation of reservations and scheduling a flight home, we arrived in Upland at 2:15 a.m. on Friday. More on this tear jerking disappointment, and our return to Baja, next week.

afternoons and kids

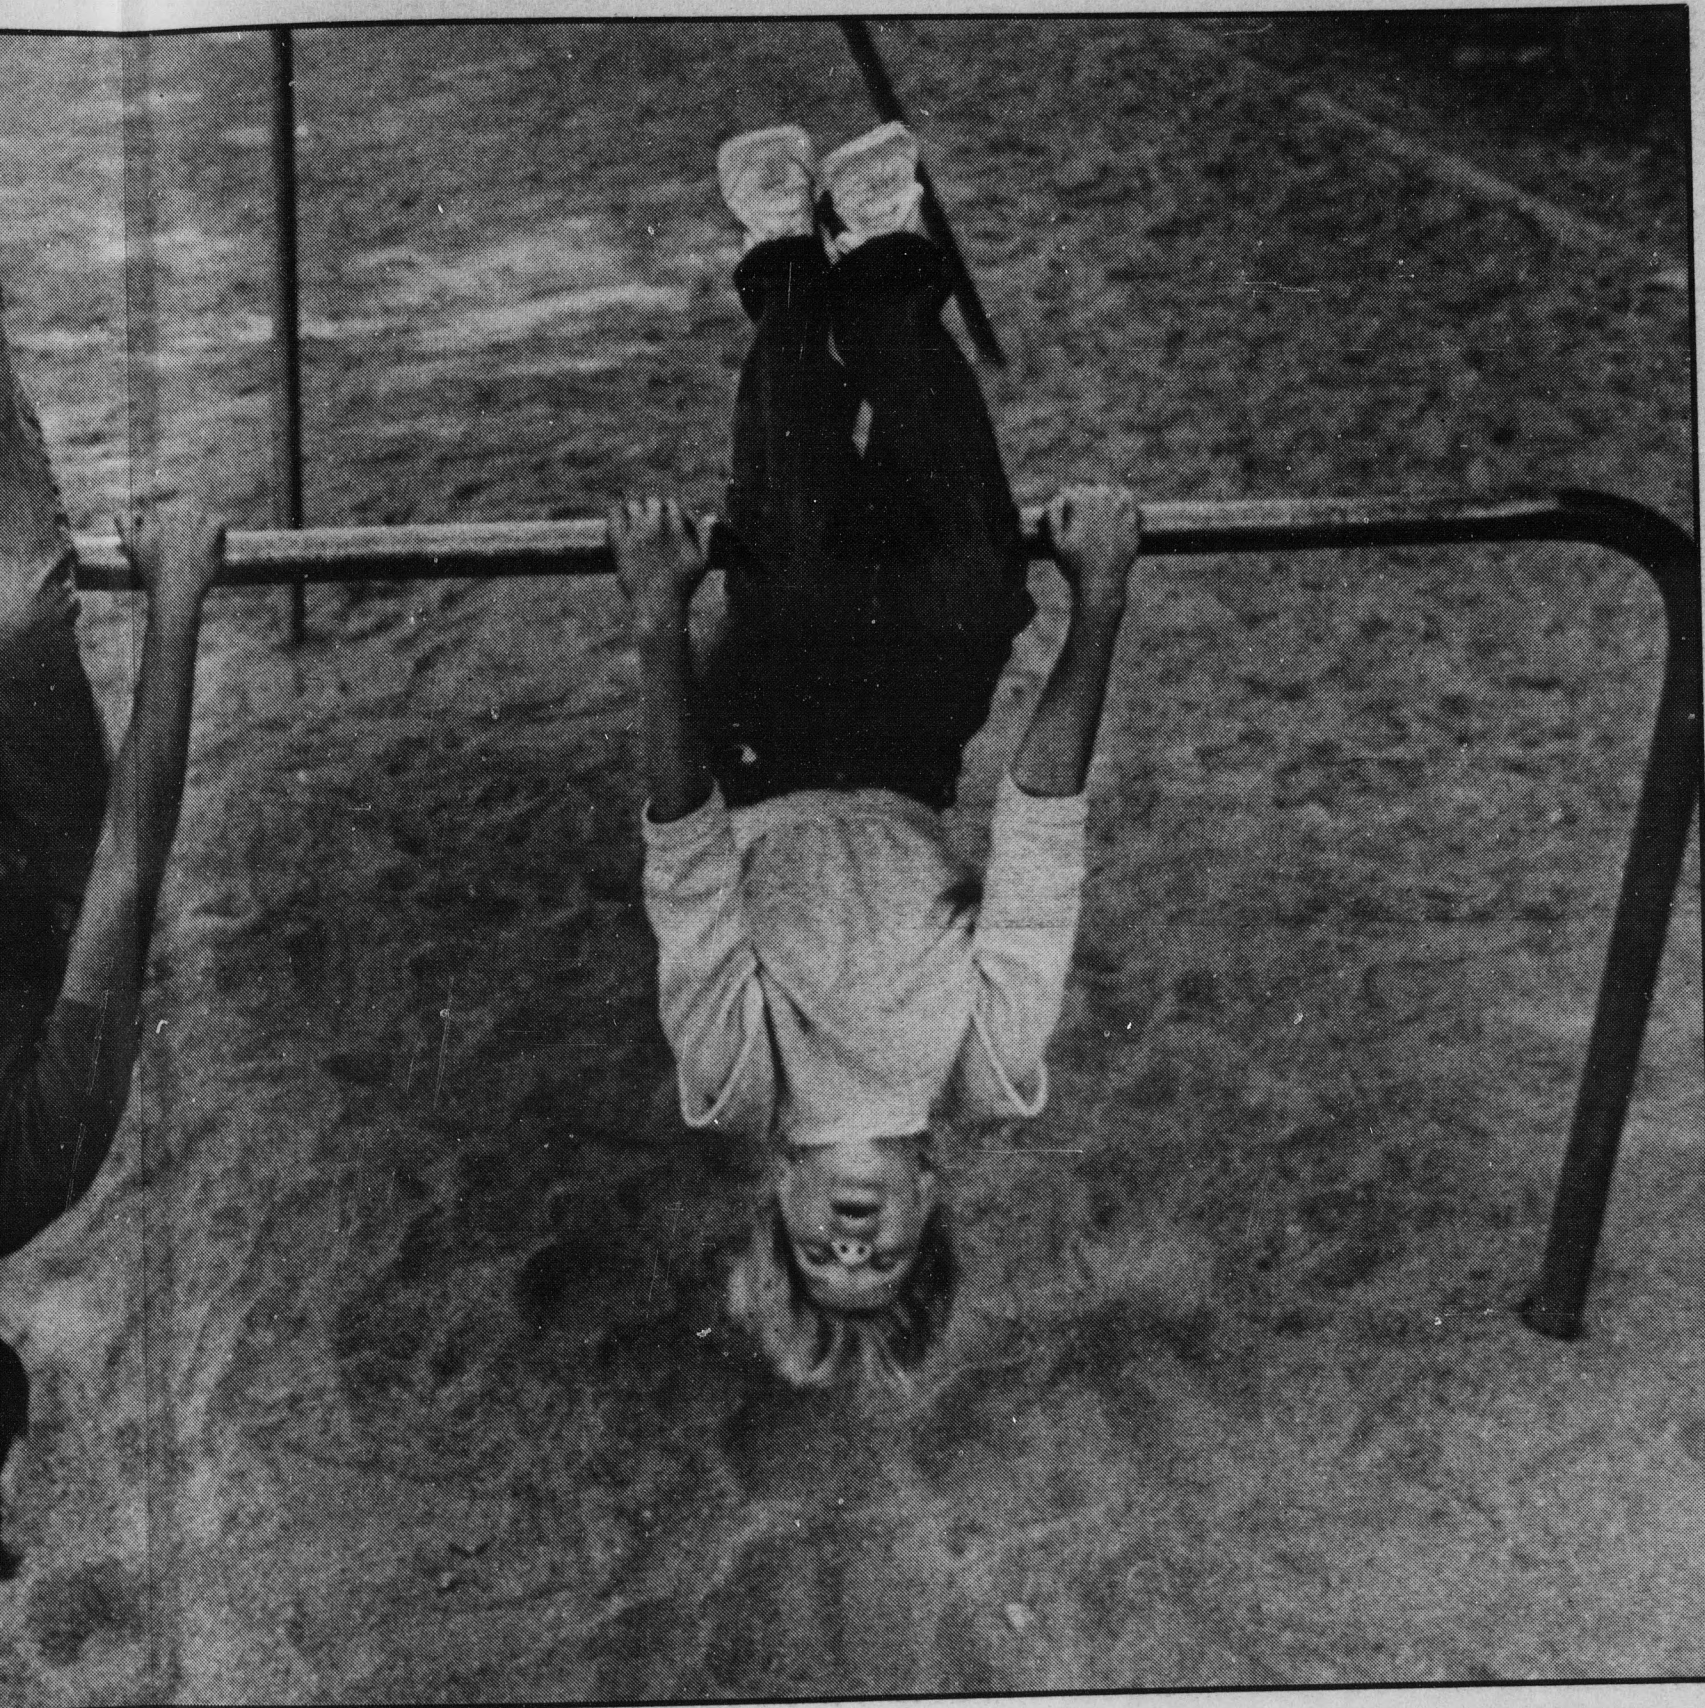

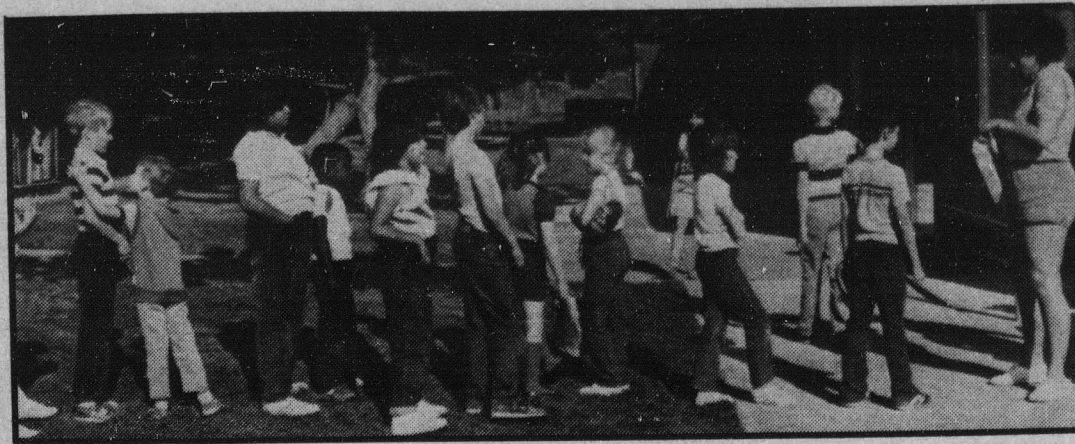

Story by Terri Tirella

Photography by Brant Clinard

One of the highlights of an afternoon of play (above right) is standing in line for a treat. Mikel Bedinger, 16, a YMCA counselor and Arline Hiatt, 11, (right) try to out do each other in somersaulting over and over the bar. Basketball (below) is a popular activity with the kids. Denise Scrna, 7, (bottom) is telling Mark Rickter, 8, to go fish in the card game they are playing.

NE, and kids

The West End YMCA Sunshine Company, which breaks through clouds of parental uncertainties over child care, will offer a program at Central School beginning April 23.

The expanded Y Sunshine program will be in part of a triple-wide trailer on the north end of the Central campus.

The Sunshine Company already has programs at Citrus School in Upland and at the West End YMCA in Ontario.

The Central School District has been actively seeking an after-school program to serve its students. "The impetus came from a PTA presidents' meeting with Dr. (Frank) Cosca. They (the presidents) see after-school care as a great need," Sheri Nagel, director of personnel, said.

Nagel said the district then began researching and exploring different childcare programs as well as considering opening one of its own.

"The Y has a fantastic history and had a whole resource of Sunshine leaders," she said. Other private child-care facilities also were considered.

"We were looking to start (the program) next year, but the PTA said let's get it going now," Nagel explained.

The only cost to the district was the storage cabinet and telephone installation to one of the trailer classrooms. "We guaranteed (the Y) use of the facility through the summer. We may have to house (the after-school program) somewhere else next year," she said.

Anyone living in the Rancho Cucamonga may enroll their children in YMCA Sunshine Company.

Nagel said district officials thought the cost of the Y program was reasonable at $30 a week compared to the many private child care programs offered in the area.

"The Y program was already running (in this area) and having success. We didn't have to sell the community or train personnel. The Y has a good ongoing training program," she said.

Andre Sauvageau, principal at Central School, said the Central School facility could house 20 to 30 students in the after-school program, from 1 to 6 p.m. A picnic table area and a fully equipped playground are in close proximity.

The child care program is not offered before school hours. "Parents may still have to leave their children with a neighbor in the morning but at least this is a start."

While the Y Sunshine Company may be a short-term answer for the district's latchkey child concern the district hasn't ruled out forming its own day care program in the future. "We (the district) are keeping our eyes open on bills in Sacramento addressing day care needs and how schools can meet those needs," she said.

According to Diane Solorzano, PTA president at Dona Merced School in Alta Loma, the Y Sunshine Company after-school program is an attempt to stay on top of the latchkey child situation found in growing communities.

"With new homes and (more) two-income families, there are a large number of children on their own (after school hours)," Solorzano said.

She said different schools have sponsored latchkey assemblies with safety rules to follow when children are at home, whether they are left on their own everyday or once in awhile. "We had decided we felt the district should look into it (an after-school program) because there is a such a need," she said.

Keeping children off the streets, "keeping kids from being latchkey kids," is one of the goals of the Y-Sunshine Company, according to Janis Line, after-school program director at the West End YMCA.

"Parents know where their children are, that they (participating children) are picked up in a van (after school) and not walking to a babysitter," she said. "I wish more people were aware of our program so their child was not walking home (to be alone). It's not that expensive for what we offer."

And what the YMCA offers is van service for the children at their schools, field trips to area attractions or businesses, crafts, afternoon snacks, games, sports and supervised freedom.

"We try to give them (the children) as much freedom as we can ... after being in a structured atmosphere and on a Y bus for a few minutes, they need time to get out and run off that energy, we let them as long as it's in a safe range," she said.

As soon as a child steps onto the van, he or she become the responsibility of the Y. According to Line, van drivers are Youth Bus certified. "All have to pass Class 2 (requirements). Parents know we hire people to work at the YMCA who enjoy children, have worked with children before and have patience like crazy."

Children from first through sixth grades are eligible to be a part of the Sunshine Company. A ratio of 10 children per counselor is the average at each site; along with the paid Y staff are volunteers who offer their services and time, Line said.

Although the Y does not offer tutoring in its after-school program, counselors will help children with their homework. "Some parents want their children to study ... want their homework done before they go home and we will see they do it," she said.

Trips to the park, to see the workings of MacDonald's or to explore shelves and activities in local libraries are a part of the weekly Sunshine Company schedule. A quiet time for reading, listening to records and studying is held during the last hour before parents pick up their children, giving the children an opportunity to wind down.

For information and registration call the YMCA at 986-5847 or stop by, 215 W. C St., Ontario. □

Class fills the communication gap

By Terri Tirella

You've heard of the generation gap. Well, there's also a communication gap and it's a serious problem Elizabeth Gutel is trying to bridge.

The Alta Loma woman's free sign language class may seem like a tiny step but to the 68 people who've signed up, the class is a perfect opportunity to make sure that others can hear them.

"I had 68 people call (to reserve class space). I didn't expect that big of a response ... We're offering the class out of love for friends," she said.

People signing up for the class had a variety of reasons, Gutel said. "People with relatives that are deaf; people just interested in sign language; people expressing a desire to work with the deaf or jobs that might be enhanced. Some want to minister, there were a range of reasons."

Gutel had offered classes in her home since September and is involved in the Life Bible Fellowship ministry for the deaf. "We just decided it would be a waste to limit classes to church people so we wanted to offer it to anyone interested or who wanted to learn," she said.

The class began March 26 at the Rancho Cucamonga Library. According to Gutel, sign language is easy to learn because of its graphic nature. "Basically, it's showing (the student) a sign and explaining each movement ... people can pick up each sign and relate it to something and it sticks in your mind," she said.

The class is divided, with sections for beginners and for the more advanced. The advanced student focuses on building a vocabulary. The class is geared for deaf or hearing-impaired people. "We hope more deaf people join us, if just for the fellowship," Gutel said.

The class will be held during a 12-week period. "We have been telling those on a waiting list that maybe, just maybe, we will be able to arrange (the beginning class) once more in September," Gutel said.

Beginners will start with finger spelling drills and will practice in small groups. Books are optional for the class and course work will be distributed in the class.

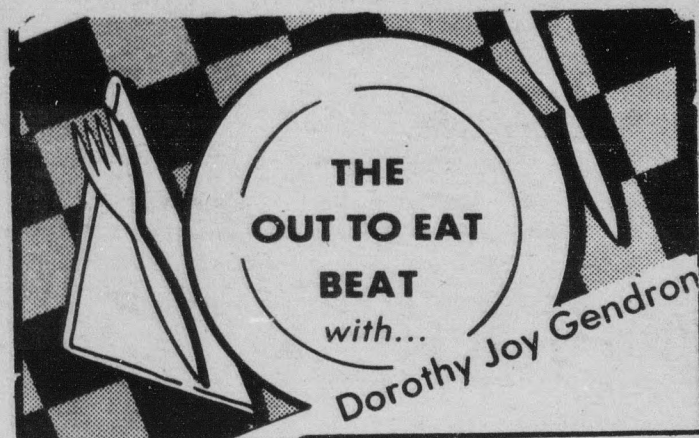

Gutel doesn't limit classes to potential student's ages. "I have a 6-year-old who has taken to sign language. The little ones will go up to a deaf person and talk to them and think nothing of it."

Gutel said one reason for holding the sign language class is to reach out to the deaf community and learn of its needs. She described one of the problems the deaf have is access to police protection. "There is only one (police station) TTY (telephoning device for the deaf) in the area and that's in Montclair ... I would imagine the telephone company would provide the police department with a TTY or something in case of an emergency."

"We want to let them know we care because they seem to alienate themselves and we seem to let them all because not enough people will take time to help them and communicate with them," Gutel said.

One of Gutel's students, Jan McGee, said she wanted to learn sign language as a way to reach out and help others, as well as learning a skill to teach local Boy Scouts.

IT'S UP TO YOU. Give It to IRS. Or, keep it.

It's your money. You can reduce your 1983 taxable gross income by up to $4,000, or at least by $2,000. You can, that is, when you open your IRA Account at one of our offices prior to April 15, 1984 (technically you have until the following day, Monday, April 16, 1984).

SINGLE OR MARRIED.

If you are married and your spouse doesn't work, you can save up to $2,250. Take $2,250 right off the top of your 1983 taxable income. If you both work, you each can save $2,000—a total of $4,000 right off the top. If you are single and employed, you can save up to $2,000.

YOU ARE ENTITLED TO IT.

Southwest's IRA Account is available to every American wage earner. Even if you are covered by a pension plan where you work (including a government job), or a Keogh Plan, you are entitled to have your own Individual Retirement Account so you can save tax-deferred, high interest-earning money towards your retirement.

IT'S DEDUCTIBLE & TAX-DEFERRED.

The benefits of your IRA are immediate and real: You reduce your taxable income each year by the amount you put in your IRA, usually resulting in fewer income taxes to pay. And, the money you save in your IRA, and the high interest it earns, are tax-deferred until you withdraw funds anytime after age 59½. Whatever you withdraw is taxed as ordinary income, and at the lower rates you most likely will enjoy after retirement. Penalties are required, by law, for earlier withdrawals.

It's up to you: Either (1) Pay taxes on all of your 1983 income, or (2) Open your IRA and save tax-deductible dollars—earning high interest—for your retirement.

If you prefer No. 2, please see us. We can help.

Southwest Savings Since 1945

Your savings are insured up to $100,000.

Central District on ADA target

Watch out, Kreskin.

Tom Garnella, Central School District's assistant superintendent of business services, is just eight students shy of the average daily attendance (ADA) figure he predicted way back when this year's budget was drafted.

A district's ADA dictates the funds they will receive from the state.

While the figures for March could put Garnella right on the money, at press time the district had 2,927 ADA. Garnella predicted

2,935 ADA when he wrote the budget up earlier this year.

Stay tuned in case fortune tellers from surrounding districts did any better.

Perfect attendees announced

Earl Miller, Etiwanda High School's assistant principal, recently announced the students who have had perfect attendance from Jan. 30 through March 23.

The students are: Mark Antill, Cindi Barnes, William Barnes, Christina Beaton, Edward Beaumont, Shelly Beeman, Josie Beltran, Kimi Bennett, Jesus Berdeja, Felicia Blue, Alvin Boling, Ann Bones, Jorge Cabrera, Holly Calinsky, Manuel Campos, Esteban Cano, Allen Cariveau, Rosa Chacon, Terri Clark, Jeanine Cota, Dean Crabbe, Glen Daniels, Carolyn Downey, Bruce Draper, Deidre Duff, Joseph Garcia, Francisco Gonzales, Kristin Gorham, Ronald Gross, Melba Gutierrez, Everyone's jumping on the bandwagon," said Todd Jansen who sells popular Pen Stamps for an Irvine firm.

"Something like the Cabbage Patch comes along only once every 50 years," said Heather Lehren who sells limited edition dolls.

An unusual item this year is a porcelain of Elvis Presley, wearing a white leather suit and a belt decorated with a diamond. Only 750 collectors will have the privilege of purchasing the doll for $2,500, Lehren reported.

Three items that may rival the Cabbage Patch phenomenon are Ver-bot, Ding-bot and Omni-bot, three robots touted by Floyd Riggle, a hustler dressed in a tuxedo with a slick spiel on the "robots of the future."

Omni-bot is for the 25 year old, "the guy who bought the first video recorder and home computer — the guy who never grew up." The electronic butler can be pre-programmed to carry snacks, recite poems as eyes flash, play background music and follow eight specific commands.

The exhibition building, decorated with red, blue and green carpet and bunches of balloons, housed 591 booths for 172 exhibitors.

There were stickers, stamps and stuffed animals. There were thousands of dolls, dollhouses and miniature furniture.

One item that the manufacturer expects to "sell like hotcakes" is a Return of the Jedi gym dandy complete with cockpit and space ship.

A stuffed replica of the comic strip character Garfield — wearing a sun visor and swinging a tennis racquet, peered from one shelf.

Another shelf held a model of the Spruce Goose, a model that flies.

Stacked in the corner of one display booth were hundreds of "kinderbricks," a new product invented by June Groden of Palm Desert. The bricks, said the inventor's husband, Irving, are sturdy and are the same size as real bricks to appeal to children's affinity for realism.

Silberman commented that nearly every booth contained at least one new item. Buyers and sellers alike were obviously enjoying the show, held for the first time in Pomona.

Sign class hopes to fill communication gap has been active in Trails End District. "We have a handicapped pack and I would like to see (deaf boys) become deeper involved in Cub Scouting. This is one way to let them know we care."

She said she became interested in sign language after seeing one of the Cub Scout dens recite the Cub Scout Pledge in sign.

Mary Jane Tilson is director of nursing at Doctor's Hospital in Montclair. She said she sees sign language as an important skill that could be offered to patients.

"A hospital is a frightening place at best, and when there's no one around to explain ... I would use .: (sign language) to communicate (hospital) procedures and what to expect. Everyone who goes into the hospital wonders what is going to happen next," she said.

According to Bonnie London, divine guidance brought her to the sign language class. "My best friend started with sign language and I found I pick up signing faster than anything else. I feel this is what God wants me to do."

She said she was interested in going into full-time ministry for the deaf. □

Cozart enjoys success in Florida prep ranks

By Ron Witt

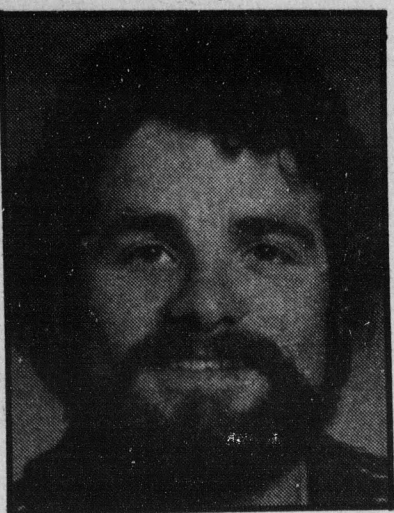

Upland product Russ Cozart and winning just seem to go together.

Cozart emerged a successful lightweight wrestler at Upland High School in the early 1970's, good enough to garner a second-place finish in CIF and a national title in Greco Roman-style competition.

Accorded a full scholarship, the protege of Scot coach George Beresford went on to achieve additional prominence in the sport on the collegiate level at the University of Alabama.

Later, Cozart became a winning coach as well when he returned to Upland and guided the Highlanders to consecutive San Antonio League dual meet championships in 1976-77 and 1977-78.

And now, the 30-year-old former Uplander is working on even greater coaching triumphs in his favorite sport at

Russ Cozart
Brandon High School in Brandon, Fla., 15 miles east of Tampa.

In the season recently concluded, his fourth at the school, Cozart's Brandon Eagles won their second Florida state title in the last three years and extended their dual match win streak to an eye-popping total of 131 over 12 years.

The streak, started by Jim Graves (now a Cozart assistant), is reputed to be the second-longest extant among prep teams nationally, topped only by the 159 at Bismarck, N.D., High School.

Cozart watched with pride as his team captured the large-school division of the state tourney by 30 points. Brandon advanced an unprecedented five wrestlers to the championship finals, and two of them claimed titles.

As an outgrowth of his team's success, Cozart also has been named prep wrestling coach of the year in Florida on two occasions.

"I'm 10 times the coach (now) I was at Upland," says Cozart without sounding boastful. "I thought I was doing a good job at Upland, but now I'm a lot more well-rounded. I'm up to my ears in wrestling."

"I didn't deserve to be the head coach at the time," he adds. "I should have paid my dues. I made a lot of mistakes."

"After two years (at Upland), they couldn't hire me as a teacher. I was upset because I couldn't be on campus to check grades and recruit kids, and it didn't seem anybody cared."

"It was very hard decision for me to leave, but for some reason, I knew it was the thing to do."

Cozart has been coaching in Florida for six years since leaving the West Valley. He was two years at Chamberlain High School in Florida before shifting to Brandon.

In order to polish his coaching skills, Cozart has attended Iowa camps in the summers. Last year, he broadened his horizons even further, taking a two-week course at the University of Moscow in the Soviet Union.

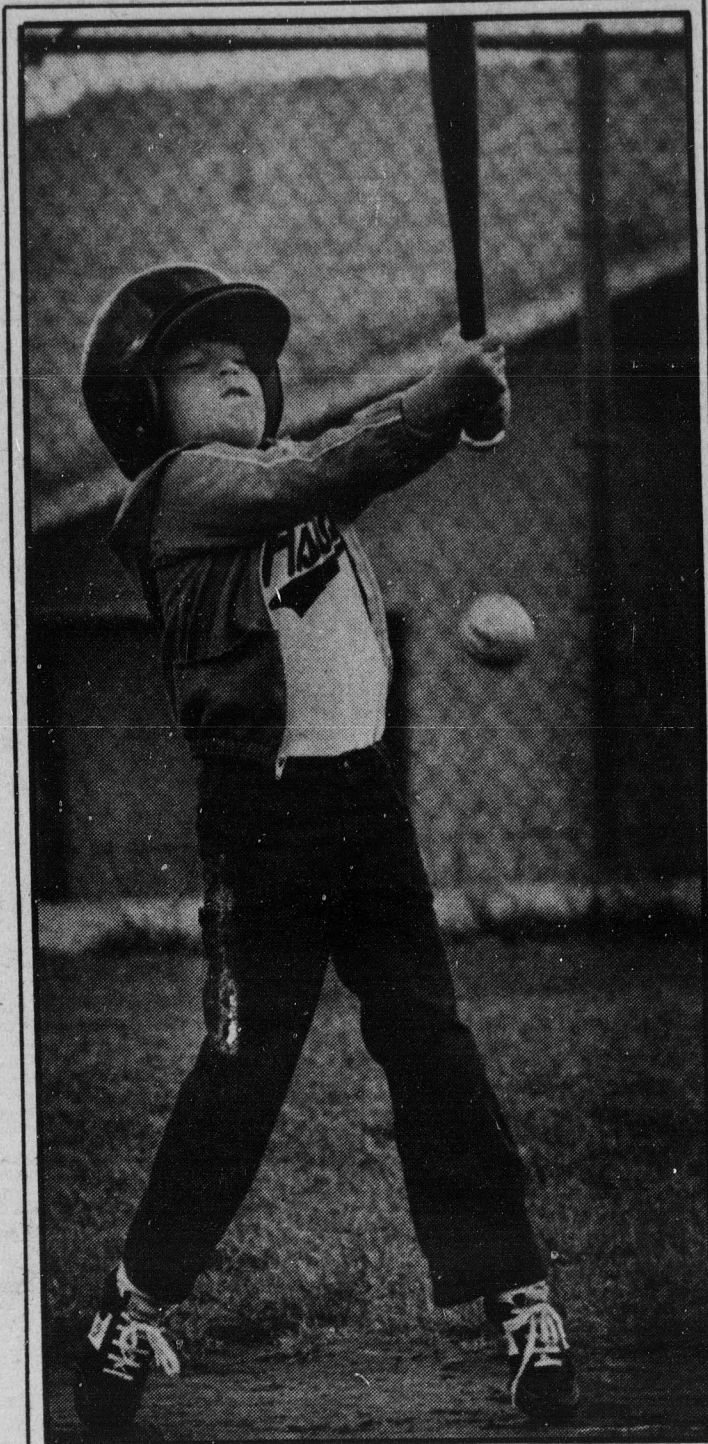

Cozart says he retains a soft spot in his heart for Upland in general and Beresford in particular. "Wrestling was always a love for me, and George made it that way," says Russ.

But the Southern California native says it would take a lot for him to give up his situation at Brandon.

"I left California because I was upset with areas of education, and I didn't think there was much future there for me," Cozart says. "There was no commitment from the administration to build a good sports program. Here, the county makes sure everybody has a fair program. The administration really backs you, and the principal never misses a match."

Another reason for Cozart to stay, of course, is the fact that Brandon remains highly successful in wrestling and other Little League is back.

Both Upland American and Foothill Little League open the 1984 season Saturday with ceremonies and the first round of games.

Upland American will get its opening ceremonies underway at 7:45 a.m. at Raney-Schnepp Field. There will be 10 major and eight minor league squads.

Flowers Field will be the site of the Upland American ceremonies slated to start at 8:30 a.m. The league boasts of eight major league teams, seven minor, eight Tee-ball, four Senior and one Big League teams.

CC closes in on swim title

Chaffey College can wrap up the dual meet portion of the Inland Valley Conference swim season with a victory over San Bernardino Valley College Friday afternoon.

Coach Mike Dickinson's Panthers moved closer to the IVC title last week with a 78-35 win over rival Citrus. It avenged last season's 64-48 loss to the Owls and also resulted in a pair of school records.

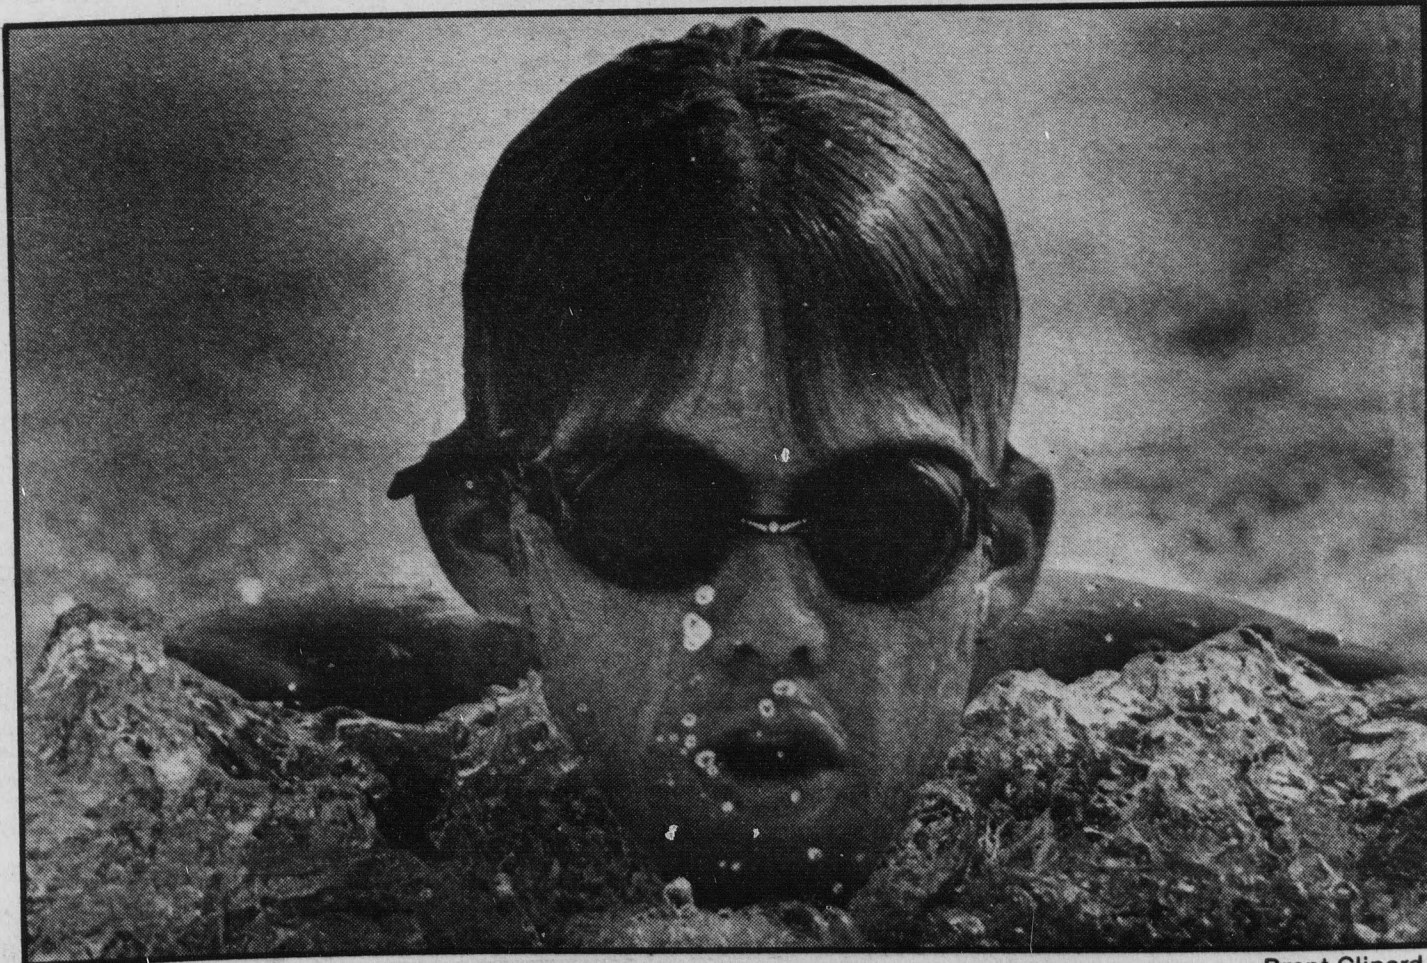

"We have a very good team, from the first man all the way down," said Dickinson. The quality and depth should provide Chaffey with its first league title of the year.

"The overall league winner is based on dual meet and conferece meet points," Dickinson said. "I believe we have too much depth and quality to be be challenged in the conference meet."

"We should be favored in nine individual races and all three relays," Dickinson said. "Our weakest link is the butterfly, and we could fill that gap and win easily, but we're not going that way."

In addition, Dickson believes his swimmers sports as well. It's just plain fun and exciting to be associated with a winner.

For example, a particularly important dual match drew a full house at Brandon High's 2,200-seat gymnasium.

When the Eagles won their 100th consecutive match, they appeared on ESPN, the television sports network.

At a recent Brandon wrestling banquet, the local Elks Club provided free pizza to some 300 people associated with the Eagles' championship squad.

"There's some pressure," Cozart admits. "It's really been a challenge, because I didn't want to lose that streak. But I have a good situation, and I'm working with a lot of good kids and growing professionally."

Chaffey swimmers

have an excellent shot at qualifying for the state meet in all three relays, and placing in the 800 free. Time standards are used to invite community college swimmers to the state meet.

"Our state qualifying times are just off the NCAA Division II qualifying times," said Dickinson. "That's how fast California JC swimming is. If it were a dual meet, it would be real close."

In the win over Citrus, freshmen Jeff Miller and Mike Stelte set new school records. Miller's 2:07.73 effort in the 200 backstroke bettered the 1978 record of John Carpenter. Stelte won the 200 breaststroke in 2:15.05, almost a second faster than the time set by Dave Oakes in 1980 (2:15.98).

Dickson was also pleased by Steve Keough's triple victory.

As strong as the Chaffey team may appear to be at the moment, the Panthers figure to get better. Adam Bernard, the IVC 100 and 200 breaststroke champion last year, will be eligible for the conference and state meets.

"He's going to give us a boost," said Dickson. He'll be part of the 800 free relay, along with Keough, Miller and Allan Gosney, that the Chaffey head coach will place in the state meet.

Rainbow Express in finals

Unlike their professional football namesakes in Los Angeles, the Upland Rainbow Express does have an offense. Good enough for a pair of important wins over the weekend.

The soccer team of girls under 12 gained the State Cup finals and won the Pacific Coast League Cup in action. Coach Diana O'Brien's team has now won 30 games since the start of play last fall.

To reach the State Cup finals in Northridge, the Express defeated the Fountain Valley Wolfpack by a 4-1 count. Shelly O'Brien, Annette Devold and Angie Lum scored the goals for the Upland squad.

Goal keeper Misty Barrett registered the shutout and O'Brien supplied the winning goal against the Anaheim Shooting Stars in the league Cup final.

Surf claims crown at invitational tourney

The Upland/Alta Loma Surf was one of four West Valley teams which won divisional titles at the Aztecs April Fools Invitational tournament over the weekend.

Coached by Paul Miller and John Gallagher, the Surf upped its seasonal record to 19-2-1 with its title in the boys under 13 division.

The other West Valley teams to win were part of the host club. The under 15, under 14 and under 11 Aztecs all won divisional titles, while the under 12 squad placed second in the tourney.

Paced by most valuable player Brian MacDonald, the Surf defeated the Sepulveda Chargers by a 3-2 count in the finals. The Surf also registered wins over the Newhall Golden Spurs, 3-2; La Palma Gunners, 6-0; and the Orange Villa Blazers, 1-0.

For the season, the Surf score 110 goals and surrendered a mere 13 goals.

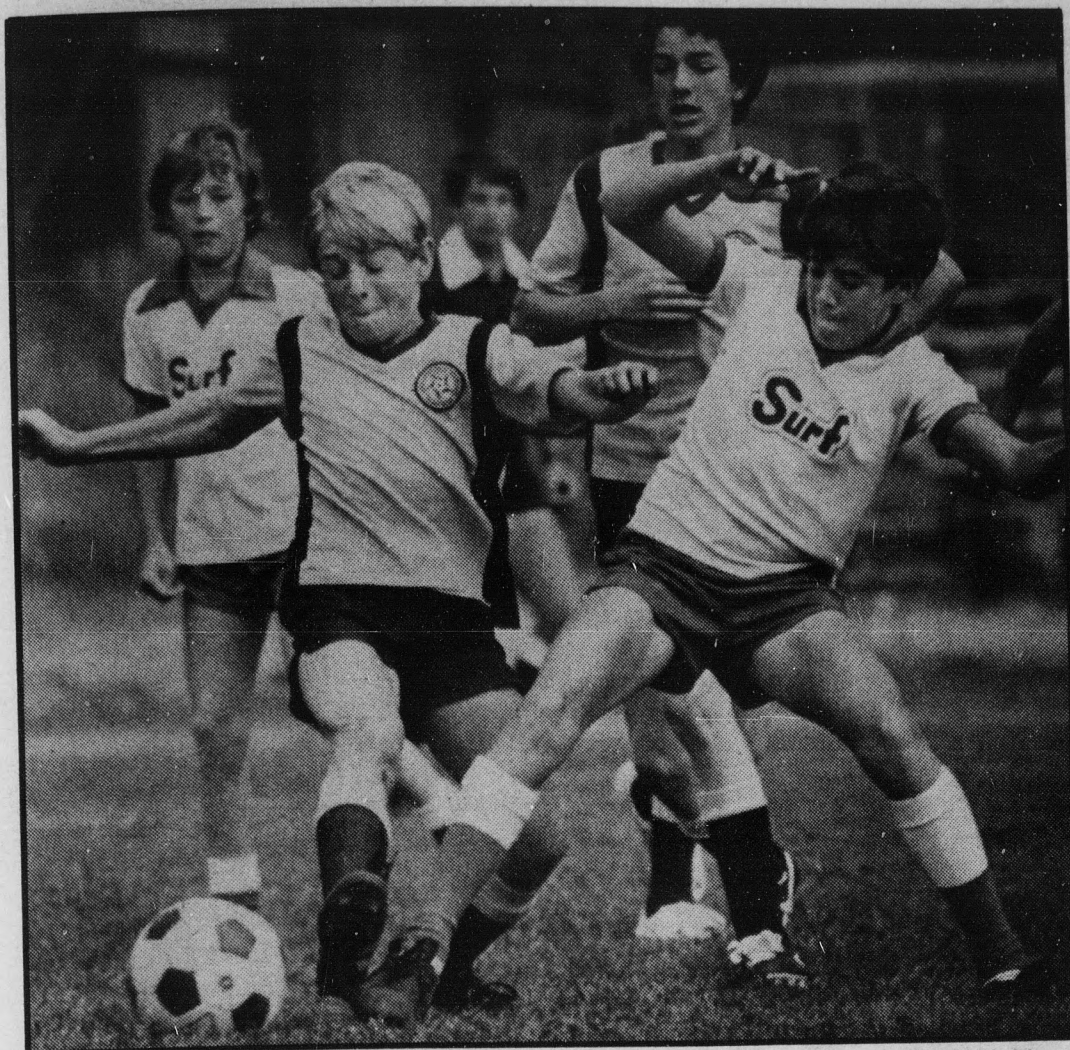

In addition to MacDonald, other Surf players who were cited for their play in the championship game were defenders Darin Fellberg and Preston Kaenel.

The Surf had earlier won the Mt. View League Cup. Players from Upland include Todd Miller, Scott Martin, Chris Marten, MacDonald, Todd Kievit, Kaenel, David Glatfelter, Sean Gallagher and Malcolm Cross. Alta Loma team members include

A total of 36 select teams played in the invitational, which used fields at Alta Loma High School and Alta Loma Park.
